Canberra: The Australian National University Library Fragment, Psalter https://fragmentarium.ms/overview/F-4nhn

Contents

The text begins partway through the initial request of the prayer Doulx dieu, doulx pere, sainte trinite (in English, The Seven Requests to our Lord), ending with the third request.

The transcription follows the layout of the single column of 14 lines. Hyphens are added to words broken at the end of a line. Expanded scribal abbreviations are underlined, and decorated initials indicated in in  $bold.^1$

... highest counsel which you have taken from your own wisdom when you sent your holy angel Gabriel to the Virgin Mary to tell and announce your counsel and news of your salut. Lord, just as that was so look on me with mercy. Amen. Our Father. Beautiful Lord God I ask that you look upon me in mercy, in honour and in remembrance of that blessed regard with which you looked upon the human race when you sent your dear son to die on earth for us. Lord, if this was so look upon me with mercy. Our Father. Beautiful Lord God I ask that you look upon me with mercy in honor and in remembrance of the blessed regard with which you looked upon your apostles when you said to them 'Whatever things you will ask of my father you shall have'. Lord, just as this was true ...
