

John i Succuon

Handwritten Latin text in a medieval script, consisting of several lines. The text is written on a parchment fragment with some irregular edges. The script is a cursive hand, likely from the 13th or 14th century. The text is arranged in two columns, with the left column starting around the 20th line of the page. The text is mostly legible but contains some faint or partially obscured words. The right column ends around the 35th line, and the left column continues below it.

A. D. 1240. — Aus dem Register Kaiser Friedrichs II.
Neapel, Regio Archivio di Stato, Regestum Federici II. imperatoris, fol. 71r.