

This image shows a single page from an antique manuscript, likely from the 12th or 13th century. The page is made of aged, yellowish-brown paper. The text is written in a Gothic script in two columns. The left column begins with "prolatus iugro" and continues with several paragraphs of Latin prose. The right column begins with "in meo" and also contains several paragraphs of Latin prose. There are several large, irregular holes and tears in the paper, particularly along the right edge, suggesting it has been handled or stored in a damp environment. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved historical document.