

Fragment of a Latin manuscript, likely a doctrinale, showing two columns of text in a medieval script. The text is written in a dark ink on aged, yellowish parchment. The script is a dense, cursive hand, characteristic of the 12th or 13th century. The fragment is rectangular and appears to be a piece torn from a larger page. The text is arranged in two columns, with a clear margin between them. The parchment shows signs of wear, including some staining and a small tear near the bottom center. The overall appearance is that of an ancient, well-preserved but slightly damaged document.