

Johan of Mautrevers and to hem he made his compleint of his forre and of his diseas and ofte tynnes behayd of his Wardeyns What he had trespassed agens dame Isakell his Wyfe and Sir Edward his sonne whiche was made nexte kynghe that they wolden nouȝt visite him. Tho answere one of his Wardeyns My worthy lord displeseth yow nat that I shall tolle yow the encheson is for it is done hem to understande that yf my lady your Wyfe come any thyng upe yow be that ywolde hit strangle and quelle And also that re-wolde do to my lord your sonne that same. Tho answere he with simple chere Alas alack am I nat in prison e all at your owne wyl noȝt god it wote I thought it neuer and nowe I wolde p-I were dede so wolde god that I were for than were all my forre passed. Hit was not long after that the kyng thurgh counsell of mortimer graunted the Wards e keepynge of sir Edward his fader to sir Thomas Toiourney e to the forsaid sir Johan Mautrevers thurgh the kynges lye e put ouȝt help the forsaid sir Mortice of the Ward of the kyng e they tolke e led the kyng vij to the Castell of Corfe the whiche Castell the kyng haled as amy deff e they kepte hym ther sauely till it come vij to hemm Mattheus day in septem-bre in the yere of grace M.ccc. xxvj that the forsaid sir Roger mortimer sent the maner of the deff hovis e what Wyfe he shold be done to deff. And anow as the forsaid Thomas e Johan had seyn the letter e comandement they made kyng Edward of Caruina good cheue e good solas as they myght at that tyme e no thyng the kyng wylt of h trecherie And when tym was for to goo bede the kyng went vij to his bed e lay e slept fast and as the kyng lay e slept the traitors fals for wome agens his homage e his feaute comen priuely vij to the kynges chambre andy his compane with hem and leyden an huge table vpon his wombe e with men presse-den e helden fast a dounre the iiii corneris of the table vpon his body therwith the goodman awoke e was wonder sore adrad to be deff therre and slayne e turned his body tho vpsedoun. Tho tolke the fale traitors and as wode trauntz an horne e put it in to his fundement as depe as they myght e tolke a syre of copir brenynt e put it thurath the horne in to his body e ofte tynnes waled ther with his bowdes and so they quelt hit lord that no thyng was pernied e after he was entred at Gloucester Hit kyng Edward spoused Philipp the Erles daughter of Renauende at wortle. Ea. E. Eg. vi Id after Eastermasse tho nexte sueng sir Johan of Renauende