

Fragmentarium manuscript page with two columns of Latin text and glosses. The text is written in a medieval Gothic script with red initials. The left column contains the main text, and the right column contains glosses. The text is dense and covers most of the page.