

The image shows a single, irregularly shaped fragment of aged, light-brown paper against a dark, textured background. The fragment contains several lines of handwritten text in a brown ink, which appears to be Coptic script. The text is arranged in a vertical column, though the lines are somewhat uneven and some characters are partially obscured by the edges of the fragment. The paper has a fibrous, textured appearance with visible fibers and some minor damage or discoloration.